1. Intense preparations were being made in Dalmatia for the reception of tourists, especially those from Western Germany; they were expected to come in great numbers, chiefly during August.
2. The influx of German tourists is connected with the trade agreement concluded between Western Germany and Yugoslavia. Up to now, the value of imports from Western Germany into Yugoslavia has been much greater than the value of the Yugoslav exports to Western Germany. It is hoped that the German tourists will spend enough to eliminate this imbalance and reestablish the proper balance in the trade relations between the two countries.
3. The state airline JAT will transfer half of its airplanes for the transportation of German tourists. Yugoslav authorities are facilitating the obtaining of visas by the West Germans.
4. The Germans must deposit the marks which they intend to spend in the "Bank Deutscher Lander"; when they cross into Yugoslavia, they receive a sum of dinars equivalent to the value of the deposited marks.
